THE PHILADELPHIA MAYOR AND THE PITTERURGH MAYOR .- When the city of Pittsburgh on Saturday last was under of President Hayes as "the wise and pathe dominion of the mob, and the Philatriotic man who now fills the Chief Magdelphia troops were about to march out istracy of the Union." Pittsburgh on Saturday last was under to the railway crossing to clear it the Mayor of the city was requested to accompany the Sheriff. This he declined on a pretense of being sick, though the Pittsburgh newspapers remind him that Pittsburgh newspapers remind him that he was not too sick to visit his office to collect fines from drunken and other petty prisoners! That was the conduct of the Pitttaburgh Mayor when his city was on peril of damages amounting to millions of dollars. On the other hand the Mayor of Phila delphia, at the first menace of danger there, and in the absence of the whole available military force, who were at Pittsburgh doing duty for the cowardly incapable at the head of that city, marshalled his everyday police, made such arrangements and disposition of auxilliary bodies of Firemen and Park Guards as gave him the mastery of the situation in advance, and put down the incipient rebellion with the policeman's club.

THERE are now, according to the me reliable estimates, from 4,500 to 5,000 boats on the canals in the State of New York, only about 500 of which are rated as first-class. From the year 1844 up to the present time the total number of boats registered on the canals was 13,-453, of which there were registered in 1874 203, in 1875 103, in 1876 75, and up to the second week in July, 1877, 39 showing a steady and marked falling off in registry each successive year.

IT would be difficult to give an exact statement of the number of railroad hands at present on a strike. The num ber connected with the five principal roads, however, are as follows: New York Central and Hudson River.

This total, however, is probably less than one-half of the number on strike in the country at large.

Amos Fisii, who died in Albany last week, leaving property worth $50,000, once described his manner of life to a friend thus: "I buy a shank of beef from the butcher, which coats me ten cents. My wife makes enough soup from the ist odo wife makes enough soup from the ist odo." Amos Fish, who died in Albany last wife makes enough soup from this to do us one meal; then the meat cut from it afterward makes two more meals, or one days food for ten cents. I split the bone and get the marrowfor cooking purposes, and my wife finds sufficient fuel in the bone itself to do considerable cooking Then in an iron box I save the ashes which I use for manuring a few plants that bring me six cents each." Yet when extra taxes were put upon his property, he very rarely, if ever, demanded more rent from tenants than what they had been paying. He married a widow, who had two children and a little money. He offered to borrow the money and to allow her seven per centum. One day he forced settlement with her, bringing in a bill for her own and children's board, and leaving her in debt to him.

Each section of the bench alloted to a boy is provided with a bench vise and a drawer containing car-vers' tools. Thirty-two boys attend the school on Tuesday and Friday evenings, and each is allowed twenty-four lessons in practical wood carving, under the in-struction of competent workmen.

Strong efforts are being made in New York to abolish the system of obtaining trade known as that of "drumming." According to the estimates and conclusions of some houses it has reached that stage where expense and losses totally cordemn it.

The Colorado Coal Mines yielded, in 1876, nearly 300,000 tons of coal, worth about $750,000 at the banks. This amount is likely to be increased with each succeeding year, as the use of coal is becoming much more general for domestic, mining, milling and reducing purposes in that region.

The bulk of the boot and shoe business in the East, for the fall trade, is reported through with, and proved fully as good as was expected for it. The increase of manufactories in the West is gradually cutting into the business of the Eastern centres, and will undoubtedly in the end draw off the largest proportion of the trade.

Some of the fine paper makers of Holycke, Mass, find a decided improvement in the state of trade of late. Although this is its dull season, orders are rather better than usual, and there is also a disposition to buy finer grades, but with a decided effort to buy goods for less than the combination rate.

UNDER the new registry law in Rhode Island the voter is required to register in person annually and to certify under coath to his qualification, and also to pay his poll tax several weeks before election.

The Chief of Police of Reading, Pa, only escaped instant death, when the military fired on the mob there on Monday, by having a thick memorandum book in his pocket. He was struck squarely in the breast by a bullet, but the book turned it saide.

In this country the proportion of persons having sound teeth is only 1 to 80, hence it comes that we have 12,000 dentists in active service, who use up annually half at no of pure gold, besides cheaper filling material. tent of ten per cent. That this simul-taneous act was the result of a combina-tion will scarcely be disputed. If, there-fore, the officials of different railroads tion will scarcely be disputed. If, therefore, the officials of different railroads have the right to combine to force down wages no one can dispute the right of the men to combine to prevent their reduction. But in so doing they must commit no unlawful act, infringing private rights. We yesterday appealed to the men to truck to the sense of justice of the President and Directors to remedy their grievances on a just and equitable basis. But we are met with the assurance that it is the present purpose of the company not to receive back into their employ any of the men who have taken an active part in this strike. If this is the case another grievous mistake is being made, and one that public opinion will not sustain them in enforcing. There should be a spirit of conciliation evinced upon both sides and a respectful hearing given to the men. Had this been done before the strike there would in all probability have been no strike. Soner or later public opinion will settle down to the conviction that railroad officials have no right, on a mere question of dignity or a desire for revenge, to allow a difference between them and their employes to create a great public grievance.

If the difficulty could be harmonized

Raifroad.

At a certain English orphanage a boy gets 25 demerits for kissing a girl. At another they "apply the hair of the dog to cure the bite." When a boy kisses a girl, 12 very ugly boys stand in a row on the rostrum in the chapel, and the offernder is required to kiss them all, and kiss them well. The girl also, if she is willing to be kissed by the boy, is required to kiss a dozen ugly girls. The ceremony drawsa full house, and has never failed to cure.

The difficulty could be harmonized here at once, the strike would be in working trim. We conceive it to the great business interests that are involved, to take such measures as a removed, to take such measures as a removed. The proper is to be the duty of the officials, in view of the great business interests that are involved, to take such measures as a removed, to take such measures as a removed. Ask them to ¿come to work, with the assurance of a fair conference and a respectful hearing after the excitement is over, and we have not a particle of doubt but that they will gladly return to their engines and trains.

That the strikers had a serious grievance a brief, attement of their case will ance a brief statement of their case will show. In May last the following were, we see it stated, the rates paid to the men now striking on the lines we name below:

Firemen. Brakemen. $1 50at 75 $1 50at 75 1 73a2 00 1 73a1 1

they got at these rates only about three or at most four full days' work in the week, and are much away from home and on expense. This it is which enables both the Baltimore and Pennsylvania strikers to say that at the reduced rates they can make only about seventy-five cents per day. The managers, of course, reply that the times are hard, the roads not earning much, and that a reduction is necessary; but to this the strikers reis necessary; but to this the strikers re-join by pointing out that the Baltimore & Chio road, on which the strike began, continue to pay ten per cent dividends; that the Pennsylvania paid eight, and now pays six; some of the other roads pay eight, and the Eric pays no dividends at all, but has been so notoriously mismanaged and robbed that it is wrong to ask the workmen to bear the brunt of the difficulties.

The revolt of the train men would not Company in New York at the rate of $30,000 per annum by buying up the ferry tickets and retailing them. The Company will not sell direct to street Arabs, but they get adults to buy twenty-five cents' worth of tickets for them at a time. The purchaser then gets his passage for nothing, and the boy gets sixteen tickets for twenty-five cents, which he he sells so as to make a profit of seven cents. The Company growls, but there appears to be no remedy.

A "WHITTLING SCHOOL has been as the manager and directors are interests and directors are interests." They assert trainmen make now only about seventy-five cents see day, on which they cannot support their families." They assert "that managers and directors are interested in fast freight lines and other special enterprises, which theed the Railroad Company for the benefit of these special and priviledged undertakings." And they allude to the "watering of stock, on which the managers claim the right to extra dividends, as the workmen say, "by cutting down wages."

But these charges, even if proven, do not justify unlawful acts and a continuation of violence, either in the stopping of trains, the intimidation of men anxious to work or in the work of arson and bloodshed in which their sympathizers have involved them. Another such outbreak as that at Raltimore and Pittsburgh will bring upon them the indignation of the whole country and an explosion of public indignation which will crush them and render their attempt to stop the running of trains as futile as if a swarm of dies were to bar the way of the locometive.

The public opinion which elemands the restoration of trade and travel over the Baltimore & Ohio road recognizes that the managers are partly chargeable with the recent deplorable events. They have not treated their men with the kindness and humanity which all men are entitled to, and have there share in fomenting the dissatisfaction which has led to the strike and its accompanying evils. If they continue to fold their hands and call upon the State to relieve them with the hayonet they will bring upon themselves the indignation of the community. They must show themselves ready to conciliate, harmonize, and willing for a prompt and equitable adjustment of the differences which have led to this trouble, and a disposition to shake hands and make up with their old and faithful employes, some of whom have spent half a lifetime in the service of the road.
